

Personal Notes

Miss Minnie Zembower is the owner of a new Chevrolet touring car.

Mr. Leon Wineland Guyer, of Woodbury, was in Bedford, Friday.

Mr. Charles R. Imbler and family, of Osterburg, were Bedford visitors Saturday.

Mrs. A. R. Peters was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital on Sunday for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Garlick and children, of Everett, were in Bedford Monday.

Miss Madolyn Hyde has accepted a position as stenographer for H. C. Heckerman at the P-Nut factory.

Mrs. John Brightbill, a patient at the Western Maryland hospital very much improved.

Miss Emily Defibaugh spent the week end in Cumberland, the guest of Miss Hilda Ritchey.

Miss Frances Hogan, of Kegg is spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Fisher.

Miss Edith McCallion, of Cessna, visited Mrs. P. L. Patterson of South Juliana street, Wednesday afternoon.

Attorney B. F. Madore went to Harrisburg Wednesday to appear before the Public Service Commission.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Russell, of New York state, arrived Wednesday to visit Mr. Russell's parents.

Rev. Townsend who has been seriously ill since he was struck with an automobile last Saturday is some better.

Messrs. Ross McGuin and Harvey Hipp, of Johnstown, are spending several days with relatives and friends in Bedford.

Mrs. Frank I. Horne returned home Tuesday from the Western Maryland hospital very much improved.

Laher's Ice Cream plant which he has erected at the rear of his own property on East Pitt street is about to produce Laher's famous ice cream.

Mr. Arthur Goss arrived in Bedford last Sunday after a two weeks business trip at French Lick Springs, Ind.

Miss Helen McLaughlin who is in training at the Mercy Hospital, at Pittsburgh returned home Wednesday evening to spend sometime with home folks.

Mr. William Weyant, of King township, was in Bedford Tuesday. Mr. Weyant is going to be a candidate on the Democratic ticket for County Commissioner.

Congressman Kurtz has notified us that Mr. George W. Shafer, of Pavia, has been granted a pension at the rate of $72.00 per month from February 12, 1923.

T. E. Bradstreet will sell a couple of car loads of mules on Thursday of next week. At this sale of mules you will be able to secure a good mule for about every purpose.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Patterson and daughters, Jane and Margaret, Miss Kathryn Fahnestock and Mr. L. S. Gelsinger, of Fulton County, visited last Sunday at the home of P. L. Patterson.

The Sammels' have broken ground for the erection of two buildings on the Phillip's property on Simpson street. One building is to be occupied by Mrs. Elliott, formerly of Everett.

Those granted a marriage license in Bedford this week were: Alvah Blackburn and Verda Allison, both of West St. Clair township; George Washington Horton, of Dudley and Lillie Ann Putt, of Saxton.

Those granted a marriage license in Cumberland from Bedford County this week were: Rawn Foor and Hilda Colledge, both of Everett; Roy Charles Hughes and Florence Snyder both of Hopewell.

Any one unskilled for the American Legion Festival and desiring to contribute to the boys, will kindly notify Chas. Allen, who will see that collection is made for either Friday or Saturday nights.

The Committee on good roads and the County Commissioners went to Harrisburg to consult the highway department in regard to appropriations in building roads in Bedford County. We understand they got very poor encouragement from the administration in regard to the road. There is no likelihood of any roads being built in Bedford County this year.

The Keystone Grocery and Tea Company, of Pittsburgh, will open for business Saturday, April 21st in the Brode building in the room formerly occupied by Mrs. J. C. Russell. Mr. Brode has extensively prepared, repainted and repapered for their reception.

Mr. P. N. Risser has resigned from the Trusteeship of the Bedford County Trust Company. We understand that Mr. Risser in conjunction with Corle H. Smith has bought the Ridenour Block of Mrs. Weitz. It is rumored that a plan to establish a new bank, hotel rooms and clothing house is under contemplation in the Ridenour Block.

We understand that William Brice Jr., of Bedford and John C. Chamberlain, of Everett, have been scheduled respectively by Congressman Kurtz for appointment as Postmaster of their towns. This is not official however, but if it should prove true it demonstrates that Reynolds controls Kurtz as Congressman and that hereafter he will dictate all federal appointments as well as all state appointments in Bedford County.

APPROPRIATIONS SECURED FOR SMALL DISTRICTS

Mr. Derrick, of the Senate, and Mr. Wright, of the House, have secured all appropriation for Bedford County school districts under $1000 due since February 1, 1923.

The districts affected are:

Bloomfield	$980
Coaldale	270
King	840
Lincoln	780
Loysburg Ind.	208
Mann's Choice	640
New Paris Borough	540
New Paris Joint	520
Osterburg Ind.	370
Pleasantville	460
Rainsburg	400
St. Clairsville	200
Schellburg	600
Union	640
Woodbury Boro.	630

Mr. Derrick reports that he hopes in a few days to have the appropriations paid for districts ranging between $1000 and $2000. We might add that Mr. Derrick has been very active in having the poorer districts of Bedford County reclassified so that they will get a greater help by appropriations than the richer districts and we feel that the recommendations of Mr. Derrick will be incorporated as amendments to the Edmonds bill.

WELL KNOWN BEDFORD CITIZEN DIED AT THE ALLEGHENY HOSPITAL, CUMBERLAND, MD.

Mr. Peter Beemler, aged 74, of West Pitt Street, died at the Allegheny Hospital, Cumberland, Md., at 9:30 o'clock Thursday, April 8, after a lingering illness. He was admitted for treatment to the institution on March 1 and his condition grew steadily worse. He was born August 20, 1848 in Bedford County, On May 18, 1876 he was married to Mary College, deceased. He is survived by one son, Harry, of Springfield, Ohio, and two daughters, Mamie, of Wilkesburg and Lista, of Luke, Md.

Fickes of Sprout and Miss Mary Isabelle Burket, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burket of Claysburg, were married on Sunday afternoon at 5:30 p. m. at the Lutheran parsonage in Bellwood by Rev. Herbert K. Bowser. A host of friends wish them a very happy and prosperous wedded life.

MCFERREN-ARNOLD

Mr. Albert McFerren and Miss Ada Arnold were united in marriage at the M. E. Parsonage, Bedford, on April 11th by the Rev. J. V. Royer.

TAXATION BILL BEFORE LEGISLATURE

No more important legislation before the legislature for the session of 1923 has been introduced than the bill for changing the system of taxation. The bill provides new methods for levying and collecting taxes and assessing and valuing properties. The bill provides that all assessors in townships and boroughs be abolished as well as local tax collectors and for Bedford County the county commissioners are to act as board of assessors with $300 additional per annum for this purpose. The bill also provides that the board of assessors of a county which in Bedford County is the board of commissioners is to divide the county into convenient districts and appoint subordinate assessors who in Bedford County will receive a salary of $1200 and these subordinate assessors, the bill provides shall not more or greater than four in number. The taxable property shall consist of all real estate, houses, lands, lots of ground, and ground rents, minerals, mills and factories of all kinds, garages, furnaces, forges, distilleries, sugar houses, malt houses, breweries, tan yards, fisheries, ferries, wharves, etc. All horses, mules, meat cattle, over the age of four years, all traction engines, all salaries and emoluments of office, all office and posts of profit, profession, trades and occupations.

The personal property tax is based only for county purposes and includes all moneys, in bank, stocks, securities, savings, and any thing earning interest. Property that is exempt is bank notes, commercial paper, building and loan savings, relief associations, bonds, mortgages, etc.

The assessments are to be made annually instead of every three years as at present and the board of assessors are to adopt uniform standards and take into consideration improvements to property, proximity to market, other advantages, amount paid by owners, amount of rents, amount of insurance, carried on building or improvements.

The subordinate assessors shall make the assessments and shall make a just and perfect list of male and female persons over 21 years of age and all lands improvements, minerals, timber, and cleared lands are to be assessed separately.

Any person who is omitted from the assessment has the right to appeal to the board of county assessors and have his name listed to quality for voting.

For the purpose of collection of taxes officers of county, borough or township are to certify to the county board of assessors their rates of taxation together with the pole tax or per capita tax levied and the board of county assessors will then issue warrants to the county tax collector authorizing him to collect all taxes. If a municipality neglects to certify its rates of taxes, the taxes of the previous year are to be collected. Each tax payer is to be notified by mail of the amount of tax against him not later than the last day of February of each year.

The county treasurer is made the collector of delinquent taxes and for this purpose in Bedford County he is to be paid $1500. The bill provides that deputy taxes may be appointed including any bank or trust company.

The taxes may be paid in installments. The first installment must be paid not later than the first of May. The second installment must be paid not later than the first of October. A penalty of one per cent for each month or fractional part is assessed upon delinquent taxes. If a tax payer refuses to pay his tax the tax collector can imprison him. Tenants or renters are held responsible for taxes against the property rented and have a recourse by deducting the amount of the taxes and penalties from the rent. Any employer of labor is made the tax collector and if any employee refuses to pay his tax the employer is to keep it out of his wages and includes every form of employment, household servants, etc. This is about as complete a summary as we can give in regard to the new tax bill up to reconsideration for the present.

Last Saturday the State Police captured another booze car, with about 200 gallons. On Wednesday they captured another with about the same amount and yesterday morning they captured another of about the same amount. The ones captured Saturday paid their bail of $1000 in cash and were released. This makes about $4000 the county has received in bail money in the last month. A Security fund in Philadelphia seems to be furnishing the bail money for these persons. This would naturally lead you to the conclusion that there must be somebody higher up who is backing up this traffic.

Upon President Harding's return to Washington the country will look anxiously for the appointment of Federal judges to the remainder of the twenty-four Federal judgeships recently created so as to avoid any possibility of a lack of jurists to try the war profiteers and the coal profiteers and the sugar profiteers and other classified and unclassified profiteers, large and small, that Attorney General Daugherty is going to send to prison.

CIVIC CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Bedford Civic Club held its regular April meeting on Monday evening, April 9th., in the club house on Juliana street. Following the reading of the minutes the presiding officer introduced Mr. Wm. L. Byers, of the State Department of Forestry, who spoke briefly and eloquently on "Trees".

Mr. Byers first defined the name of the great state in which we live. In a letter written by William Penn to his friend Robert Turner, under date of Jan. 5, 1651, the great Quaker mentions that England has confirmed his grant of land, and that henceforth it will be known as "Pennsylvania" or "Penn's Woods". One year later he writes to a society of Friends in England a fifteen page description of his vast new domain. He mentioned fifteen different kinds of trees, deer and fishes larger than those native to England, and wonderful plants of great medicinal value, as the colonists had already learned from the friendly Indians. Last but not least, he estimates that Pennsylvania possessed twenty eight or twenty nine million acre of forest land, a goodly heritage which cost the colonists and their descendants nothing. In the nearly three hundred years which have elapsed since Penn founded his colony, now grown into one of the richest states in the Union, many thousands acres have of necessity been cleared to make way for farm, settlements and industries. Today thirteen million acres of forest remain to us, six million of which is brushland producing nothing. This cut over land would, in many cases reforest if it were not for the destructive forest fires which are constantly destroying much of our young timber. We now produce but one-fifth of the lumber used in Pennsylvania, and in lumber production we stand eighteenth among the states. Prevention of forest fires is one of the most important steps in reforestation, because the destructive flames sweep thru and destroy the young growth, burning the humus which Nature provides in the fallen and rotting leaves. Without humus the moisture is not retained about the roots of the trees, but runs off the surface. Continued prosperity demands a better timber production, for the age in which we live is an age of wood. We of today are not only the heirs of the past but the trustees of the future, and the duty of every citizen is to assist in this reforestation or four wastelands as well as in the conservation of our present forests.

Towns and villages usually impress strangers according to the apparent living conditions, topography, architecture, cleanliness and order, prosperity tree growth and shrubs. How desolate and unlovely are the towns of the coal and coke regions where sulphur fumes in the air destroy much plan and insect life; how lovely are the trees, especially the elms, of New England. Trees do more than the average man and woman realize to make cities habitable. They make for less heat, less glare, and a more healthful air to breathe, because the trees absorbing carbon gases and gives off the life giving oxygen.

Under an Act of Assembly, dated May 31st, 1907, the city council of any town or village may appoint a Shade Tree Commission of three persons. These three persons plant trees according to carefully through out plans, suiting the type of trees to width of streets, etc., etc. For instance, sugar maples and elms are unsuited to narrow streets. The city of Pittsburgh has adopted this plan and the large town of Chamoersburg is about to. Many small towns in the northern part of the state are also trying it. The Bedford Civic Club would like to promote the planting of shade trees wherever advisable and are at present seeking permission from the P. R. R. to plant Norway maples from Richard street bridge to the station.

Following Mr. Byers' excellent address, the treasurer, Miss Powell, reported the expenditures of the Civic Club since October 1st, 1922, as $520.83 with a balance of $3.67 in the treasury. A market, set for Saturday, April 2-nd, is to be held in the club house was announced.

The report from the Government committee was incomplete pending an answer from Council concerning Clean-Up Week.

Mrs. Wm. Brice Jr., chairman of the legislative committee, then made an admirable report, following which the meeting adjourned.

CLAAR-BURKET

Theodore Edward Claar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Claar of Queen, and Miss Katherine Florence Burket, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burket of Claysburg, were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday evening, March 28, at 9:30 o'clock, by Rev. Oliver H. Sensesig, pastor of the Reformed church. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding supper was served. Mr. Claar is employed as car inspector in Hollidaysburg. They will reside for the present at the home of the bride's parents.

M. E. CHURCH

J. V. Royer, Pastor Family in Sunday School and morning service. Come, with the whole family. Jr. League 2:00; Epworth League 6:30; Preaching 7:30.

CLAYSBURG BANKER CLEAN-UP-WEEK TO BEGIN APRIL 15

Moses Lingenfelter, one of Claysburg's foremost citizens and vice president of the First National bank there died Wednesday morning at 2:05 o'clock at the Mercy hospital in Altoona where he was undergoing treatment.

Mr. Lingenfelter was admitted to the hospital early in March and was operated on for appendicitis. He later underwent another operation for gall stones and was seemingly on a fair way to recovery when complications arose which caused his death.

Mr. Lingenfelter was born on a farm four miles west of Claysburg on Jan. 4, 1864, the son of George and Mrs. Barbara Lingenfelter, both deceased. He resided on a farm all his life until three years ago when he moved to Claysburg where he was engaged in the lumber business and to other interests. He was active in all civic work and an ardent republican and took considerable interest in politics. He was also a lover of sports and a great hunter, being a member of the Claysburg Hunting club and did much to promote baseball and other sports in his home town.

He was united in marriage in 1885 with Miss Lucinda Musselman, who survives with one daughter, Mrs. Claire Hileman, of Claysburg. He is also survived by these brothers and sisters: Chauncey of Klair and Z. T. of Claysburg and Mrs. Christine Cashman of Ore Hill, Mrs. Elizabeth Dively, Mrs. Rachael Dively and Mrs. Katurah Walter, Claysburg. Mrs. Margaret Sell, of Salemville, and seven grandchildren.

He was a member of the Klair Church of the Brethren and was active in the councils and various church organizations.

Emma Mae Conner

Miss Emma Mae Conner, aged 16 years, 6 months and 2 days, died last Sunday of leaking heart. She was the daughter of Robert and Cora Conner of Wolfburg. She is survived by her parents, two brothers, Glen and Emory and one sister, Ethel.

Funeral services were held Wednesday by her pastor, Rev. W. H. B. Carney with interment in the Bedford cemetery.

The high esteem in which she was held was manifested by the large number at the funeral.

CHURCHES AND W. C. T. U. UNION SERVICE

The Union Prayer Service held in the Trinity Lutheran Church, Bedford, on Wednesday evening in the interest of Sabbath Observance and International Peace was one of intense spiritual power.

The attendance was unusually large.

The "Call for the Week of Prayer" was read by Mrs. A. C. Blackburn, local W. C. T. U. president.

Rev. J. A. Eyer delivered a stirring address on Sabbath Observance and Rev. J. V. Royer supplemented by short remarks on "International Peace" which preceded a season of specific prayer by Rev. W. H. B. Carney and others on the subjects discussed.

The Lord's Prayer and Fourth Commandment given in concert together with a hearty chorus by W. C. T. U. members and other congregational singing brought the meeting to a delightful close after an unanimous action commending Governor Gifford Pinchot and our Representatives in the State Legislature for their unifying efforts to secure the passage of the New Law Enforcement Act which places Pennsylvania on the Honor Roll of states standing in support of the Volstead Act; and also commending the Governor, and State Police for enforcing the law secured.

On motion of Mr. C. F. Espenschied a letter of appreciation will be sent the Governor and State Officials in keeping with above action.

A Mr. Lewis representing the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce as advance agent arrived in Bedford Wednesday to make arrangements for the reception of the coming of one hundred and twenty five business men of Pittsburgh. These representative men will arrive in Bedford at 4:50 Thursday, May 10th and remain here one hour until 5:50 when they will depart for Cumberland. We understand these men are coming in a special car and represent a get together movement.

Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce has conducted these tours for fifteen or twenty years covering different sections each year. They will travel over eight hundred miles this year starting at Jamestown, N. Y., coming down by Elmira, N. Y. to Williamsport, Pa., to Lockhaven, Bellefonte, Huntingdon, Bedford, Cumberland, Myersdale, Somerset, Connelville, Scotland and Pittsburgh.

President Harding's recommendation for American representation on the International Court of Justice has worried the irreconcilables greatly for the last several weeks. President Harding will be sharing their worry now that his standpat friends have told him it was poor politics to permit the suspicion that he has a foreign policy.

The State Departments of Health, Forestry, Fire Protection and State Police are urging cities, boroughs, communities and individuals of Pennsylvania to observe the week beginning April 15th as general clean-up week.

On Sunday, April 15, clergymen of all denominations are asked to make reference to the subject of cleanliness at their regular services.

For the purpose of harmonious action, the work of the week may be apportioned as follows:

Monday—Street and Gutter Day—On this day attention will be given to cleaning of streets and sidewalks, clearing of gutters and ditches, flushing of sewers, etc.

Tuesday—Lawn, Park and Forestry Day—Parks, vacant lots, gardens and forests should be cleaned of dead growth and underbrush. Lawns should be raked, fences repaired, tree boxes straightened and the day devoted to general outside work.

Wednesday—Fly and Mosquito Day—All sources of fly breeding should be removed. Cess pools and outside toilets should be cleaned and limed. They should be gone over carefully and made fly proof. Stables should be cleaned and the floors sprinkled with borax. Accumulated stable manure should be hauled away and the site of the heap sprinkled with borax. Hog pens and chicken coops should be cleaned and made sanitary. Spouting and roof gutters should be fixed so that there will be no opportunity for the accumulation of standing water to breed mosquitoes. Tin cans, old bottles or anything which might hold water should be collected and placed upon the rubbish heap to be hauled away. Garbage cans should be scoured with lye and lids should be tested to find whether they are fly tight. Garbage cans should not be placed upon the ground but upon platforms slightly elevated.

Thursday—Junk Day—All trash, rubbish and other fire breeding material should be removed from buildings and premises; homes should be cleaned from attic to the cellar, old clothes, books, newspapers, magazines, bottles, tin cans, etc., disposed of. A metal receptacle should be placed in the back yard and all trash which is not salable, should be put into it, ashes should be removed and cellars cleaned and white washed.

Friday—Hauling Day—On this day wagons and trucks furnished under whatever arrangement may be made, should be provided to haul away the refuse.

Saturday—Soap and Water Day.

The American Wool Company (Wool Trust) has given its employees an increase of 12 1-2 per cent in wages. But the Fordney-McCumber profiteers' law gave the Wool Trust an increase of 137 per cent over the tariff in force two years ago. Wherefore, far from being generous the Wool Trust isn't even just to its workers.

Senator Miram Johnson is in Rome but, irreconcilable that he is, he will of course refuse to do as the Romans do.

LESSON FOR APRIL 15

JOSEPH, THE PRESERVER OF HIS PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 45:3-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee—Exodus 20:12.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Joshua
24:32, Psalm 105:16-22, Hebrews 11:21-22.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Joseph Forgiving
Brethren.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Joseph, the Forgiving
Brother.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Joseph as Son and Brother.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Inspiring Example of Joseph.

While the climax of the story is reached in Joseph's revelation to his brethren yet his life should be briefly sketched in order to get the full force of this climax.

I. Loved by His Father; Hated by His Brethren (Genesis 37). The betrayal of the father's partiality increased his brothers' hatred for him. His dreams were prophecies of God's dealing with them.

II. Sold Into Slavery (Genesis 37). So intensely did they hate him that they proposed to kill him. This murderous purpose was turned aside by the proposition to sell him into slavery. They sold him to merchantmen who were going down into Egypt and to turn they sold him as a slave.

III. Cast into Prison (Genesis 39). While serving as a slave he was falsely accused and sent to prison. Joseph's character had so impressed Potiphar that he doubted his wife's charges against him. If he had believed her he would have put this Hebrew slave to death.

IV. Made Prime Minister (Genesis 41). Though falsely accused and imprisoned the hand of the Lord was so upon him that he was soon exalted to the throne of Pharaoh.

V. His Dealing With His Brethren (Genesis 42-44). He dealt harshly with them desiring to test their characters before revealing himself to them.

VI. Joseph Reveals Himself to His Brethren (Genesis 45:1-15).

1. Alone With His Brothers (vv. 1-2). When his pent-up emotions could no longer be restrained he ordered all the men to withdraw. Here alone with his brethren he made himself known to them. There are some emotions too sacred to disclose in the presence of unsympathetic men.

2. Conscience Stricken Brothers (v. 8). When Joseph disclosed his identity they stood condemned in his presence. They were smitten with a guilty conscience. A score of years before they had put him into a pit to die, but later lifted him out and sold him into slavery. Now they are before him with reversed positions. They are at his mercy. Some day every man shall face his sins unless they be canceled in the blood of Jesus.

3. Divine Providence Interpreted (vv. 4-8). (1) His gracious invitation. (2) "Come near I am your brother." How like the Savior. He is saying unto sinners who have wronged him, "Come near, I am your brother." (3) "Be not grieved" (v. 5). He sought by these words to allay the distress in which his brothers were. Jesus is saying the same kind words to repentant sinners today. (4) "God sent me to preserve life" (v. 5-8). God turned the wicked thoughts of these brethren to good. God is today making his wrath of men to praise him. All that Satan can do but furthers God's purposes. The very wicked thoughts of these brethren in attempting to destroy Joseph were turned to the preservation of their lives.

4. Joseph's Message to His Brethren (vv. 9-13). (1) "God hath made me Lord of Egypt" (v. 9). He made them hasten to his father with the assurance that God had elevated him to a place of lordship in Egypt. (2) "Bring your father and your brethren" (v. 10). His father is invited to come, bringing his children. (3) "I will bury you" (v. 11). This must be a great and joyful surprise to Jacob when he and his death were facing him. (4) "Provision of nourishment during famine" (v. 11). Joseph did not allow his prosperity to make him selfish. His character shed the test of prosperity. (5) "Tell father of all my glory in Egypt" (v. 12). This was not boasting but an effort to convince his father of his ability to care for him.

5. Joseph's Forgiving Love (v. 14-15). Joseph weeping upon the neck of his brethren is a most touching scene. There was entire forgiveness; there was full reconciliation. This transcendent scene causes Joseph's character to shine forth in its true glory.

As If It Were Plato.

Great is he who enjoys his earthenware as if it were plate, and not less great is the man to whom all his plate is no more than earthenware.—Seneca

Consider Others.

The excessive pleasure we feel in talking of ourselves, ought to make us apprehensive that we afford little to our hearers.—Rochefoucauld.

The All-Pervading Spirit

The spirit of God is not imprisoned in the Bible nor limited to it.

RENEWED TESTIMONY

No man in Bedford who suffers from severe headaches or distressing migraines can afford to ignore this Bedford man's twice-told story. It is renewed testimony that no Bedford man can doubt.

J. O. Henderson, Bedford St., Pa. For some time now I have had a headache with my kidneys. I have had very bad headaches and a severe pain in the small of my back. I could hardly bend, the pain would catch me so bad. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and found they were doing me good, so I kept on taking them. Now I have no headaches and the pains in my back do not bother me much. Whenever I feel it coming on however, I use Doan's Kidney Pills right away and they rid me of all the trouble. (Statement given February 11, 1919.)

On July 26 1922 Mr Henderson said: The cure Doan's Kidney Pills gave me has proven lasting and I am more than glad to say a few additional words in behalf of this remarkable.

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr Henderson had. Foster-Dilburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Hail to the Chief.

"At one moment" an afternoon visitor to the lounge of a London hotel writes, "I counted five women powdering their noses; three were attending to the intricacies of manicure, another was tactfully brushing her cheek with rouge, while the majority were puffing away at cigarettes of various shapes and sizes." Did he expect them to be singing a chorus of welcome as he made his entrance, or what?—Westminster Gazette.

WHO FIRST FELT

"LIKE A FIGHTING COCK"?

COCK-FIGHTING was born with the cocks.

But it is only 80 years ago that the first man felt "like a fighting cock!"

Now he has brothers, sisters, nephews, nieces, all over the world—all feeling "like a fighting cock!"

It happens this way: A person half sick with bad stomach, dull and heavy headache, takes Beecham's Pills just before going to bed. Immediately the Pills begin to harmonize the digestive and eliminative organs.

Consequently, this person has a good night's sleep and arises in the morning with clear brain, bright eye, keen appetite, and full of energy for work and play.

It is now just 80 years since Beecham's Pills first began correcting disordered stomachs and stirring sluggish livers and bowels to natural activity—and feeling "like a fighting cock" is associated as inseparably with Beecham's Pills, as the pills are with good health.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ITEMS

Ausbridge.—The death list as a consequence of gas fumes in the residence of P. H. McCracken was increased to three when Miss Margaret McCracken died. Mrs. McCracken and Miss Pearl Prevost, a visitor, were found dead when neighbors entered the house. Mr. McCracken is not expected to live.

Pittsburgh.—Safe robbers maintained their average of one a day during the past eight days when they looted the strong box of a restaurant and got away with $2,000, some valuable jewelry and a package containing negotiable securities. Louis H. Neff, captain of detectives, selected a special detail of men to work on the safe robbery cases. In some instances the safes have been removed from buildings and dumped in a country road and then abandoned.

New Castle.—Three freight cars were derailed on the Pennsylvania lines near Mercer, tying up traffic on the main line between this city and Oil City for several hours.

Pittsburgh.—A common pleas court jury awarded $11,500 damages to Willy Smith, a minor, who sued the receivers of the Pittsburgh Railways company and the P. & A. Telephone company. Smith was burned severely when he came in contact with a mail box across which a live wire had fallen.

Somerset.—Fined for contempt of court on charges growing out of a coal strike injunction violation, eleven union miners were released from the county jail here when they paid fines ranging from $10 to $100. Their wives, fined on similar charges, are under suspended sentences.

Harrisburg.—Governor Pinchot signed the Buckman bill, amending the election laws so that constitutional amendments may be submitted at either municipal or general elections. This will permit a vote on the $50,000,000 additional road bond issue next fall instead of waiting until 1924.

The governor also approved the MacDade bill, providing a zoning system for third-class cities. It will permit city councils to regulate the location, size and use of buildings. Other bills signed by the governor were the Stites measure fixing the pay of registry of assessors in first-class townships at $5 a day for election duties, and the Spangler bill, which fixes the salaries of court clerks and tipstaves in counties between 9000 and 15,000 population at not to exceed $900 a year.

Pittsburgh.—Jerome Archie told a deputy coroner that the murder of his mother and suicide of his father could have been prevented if the police had overlooked a technicality. On Monday, the son said, Archie had been drinking "bad liquor" and came home and threatened to kill his wife. Neighbors disarmed him and reported the case to the police. The officers of a police district, however, refused to arrest the man, saying the Archie case was outside the precinct. Archie shot his wife and then shot himself.

Wilkes-Barre.—Judge Gorman commuted his sentence against bootleggers when he sentenced two more offenders to jail. John Scherut, of Nanticoke, who was found guilty of making and possessing moonshine whiskey, was given two years in jail and fined $100. He is married and has eight children. William Duganiki, of Mokanequa, father of four children, drew one year and a fine of $100. A detachment of state police from the Wyoming barracks conducted a series of raids in Nanticoke, arresting three proprietors of hotels. A large amount of liquor was seized by the officers.

Harrisburg.—The department of health notified employees of the bureau of housing that the bureau would be abolished after May 1. The work is to be taken over by the bureau of engineering. Fourteen employees are affected. A general reorganization of the clinic work in the state, which contemplates the consolidation of the work of separate clinics in various cities, is being contemplated by Commissioner of Health Miner.

New Castle.—Carl H. Dufford, secretary and treasurer of the Dufford Furniture company, was shot and seriously wounded a few minutes after Mrs. Josephine Best, formerly a stenographer in the employ of the company, entered his office. The woman is being held by the police on a charge of felonious shooting.

Wilkes-Barre.—Deyver C. Ashmead, a mining engineer, has been appointed an investigator for the United States coal commission, the first local man to be given a position in the work. For a number of years he has been anthracite editor of Coal Age, which position he recently resigned. In his new assignment he will be in charge of the investigation as to fuel waste.

Easton.—When Principal W. C. Davis, of the Easton high school, entered his office he found it had been ransacked and between $50 and $100, kept by him for various funds and organizations, had been stolen. Articles also had been stolen from other rooms by the burglars.

Brownstown.—Mrs. Adam Etcheberger died from burns received a week ago when an oil stove exploded and ignited her clothing.

Altoona.—After 42 years as editor in chief of the Altoona Tribune, Wesley Howe Schwartz retired to become editor emeritus.

Beaver.—Grant of a retrial by the supreme court after he appealed from a first degree murder verdict, George Burke, of Cleveland, was acquitted by a jury here. The indictment charged that he killed Vincent Sakralda, who was shot to death at the Beaver Falls State Bank robbery in 1919. Fred Haas, also of Cleveland, held on a similar charge, was freed when the commonwealth's case failed to establish the indictment.

Easton.—After letters of administration had been granted in the estate of the late former congressman G. A. Schneebeli, of Nazareth, a will was found and probated here. One of its provisions is that Rev. Paul De Schweinitz, of Bethlehem, shall receive $1000 to be used toward the erection of a house for a member of the Moravian mission in Hernhuth, Germany, but if war conditions make this impossible the money is to be used by Dr. De Schweinitz for the best advantage of the Moravian church at large.

Pittsburgh.—Shot by two vagrants he had ordered to leave a box car several days ago, Albert Schmittke, a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad detective, died in a Pittsburgh hospital.

Ashley.—Failing to see an approaching truck on the Ashley plain of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, Frank Friedman, aged 19, was run down and his body almost completely severed.

Hazleton.—Angelo Greco, world war veteran, has filed suit for $10,000 damages against his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Cubello, claiming that she induced his wife, mother of their two children, to leave him and return to her parental home. He contends that he took good care of his wife, but that Mrs. Cubello alienated her affections. The case comes before the Luzerne county court on April 30.

Somerset.—Charged with pointing a shotgun at a Consolidation Coal company mine guard last week, George Wagner, president of the Bell local of the United Mine Workers, was held for court after a habeas corpus hearing before Judge Berkey. In default of $1000 bail he was committed to jail.

Harrisburg.—The water supply commission has approved the following applications: Construction of a bridge across Pine creek on the state highway from Jersey Shore to Lock Haven. Construction of a bridge across Birch Run at Birchrunville, Chester county. Construction of a bridge across Haldeman creek, on Bristol road, between Ivyland and Hartsville, and for the construction of a bridge across Heriaken creek, on Curley Hill road, between Dublin Pike and Levin, Bucks county. Incorporation of the East End Water company to furnish water in a portion of Lancaster county.

Pittsburgh.—Four automobiles were destroyed and an open freight car damaged by fire at Ben Avon, a suburb. The automobiles were enroute to an eastern dealer from Michigan. The damage was estimated at $5000. The fire, which was discovered while the train was under way, is being investigated by railroad police.

Lafayette.—Annie, 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. Louis Gresh, of Beatty, died in the Lafayette Hospital as the result of burns received while burning paper in the yard of her home.

Harrisburg.—In an opinion made public to Joseph J. Walsh, chief of the department of mines, it was held by Deputy Attorney General J. W. Brown that a headman and footman must be kept at their proper places at every mine shaft or slope as long as any persons are underground. The opinion was rendered at the request of Mr. Walsh, who sought an interpretation of that section of the mining law relating to the headman and footman.

Pittsburgh.—Eight hundred local physicians, whether they are making professional calls or playing golf, will be within reach of their patients twenty-four hours a day, according to an announcement made by the County Medical Society, which has established the Pittsburgh Physicians' Exchange. A central telephone exchange connects with all offices of doctors who are members of the society. A visible file index will be kept at the exchange and whenever a physician leaves his office either on business or pleasure, it will be recorded at the exchange. All patients will have to do to locate their medical advisers is to call the information exchange.

Lock Haven.—The school children of this city and immediate vicinity excelled all previous efforts in their annual donation of eggs for the Lock Haven Hospital. They collected 3'09 eggs, which will keep the institution well supplied with "hen fruit" for some months to come.

Wilkes-Barre.—A new pair of shoes and too much moonshine are held responsible for the death of Joseph Breshko, aged 43 who fell down a flight of stairs to his death here.

Swoyersville.—Children at play in a barn here came upon the badly decomposed body of John Sabol, aged 55, missing from his home since December 28 last.

Hazleton.—Poolroom patrons and idle men on the streets here were conscripted by state troops and game wardens to fight forest fires on surrounding mountains.

Danville.—David J. Reese, cashier of the First National Bank for three years, was elected president, to succeed the late W. G. Pursel.

Fountain Springs.—Caught under a fall of top rock, Michael Bogash, aged 23 years, Marion Heights, died at the State Hospital here.

Altoona.—Samuel H. Patterson, of Pittsburgh, has been appointed claim agent for the Pennsylvania railroad here to succeed the late George A. Hooser.

Altoona.—The new Junior high school has been named the Roosevelt school.

HOMING PIGEONS

"This is to be an interesting race," said one Homing Pigeon to another. "I'm going to do the best I can for my owner."

"So am I," said the second Homing Pigeon. "Well, I hope we will all do well. For it is fine, I think, to have the Homing Pigeons all famous for their powers of racing, and of delivering messages and of being brave and of being clever and always knowing where their homes are."

"That's the idea," said the first Homing Pigeon. "I think it is splendid that we are so far-sighted. We can see such great distances."

"We can see further than people can see, and so we are of great assistance to them."

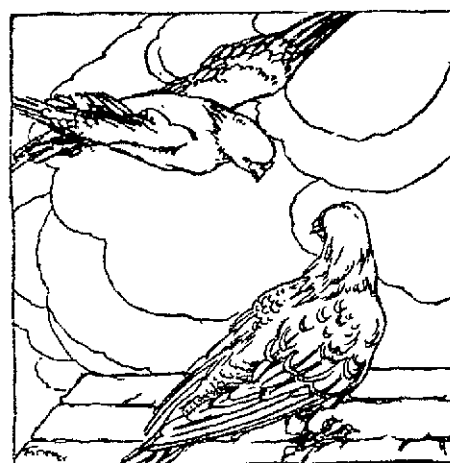

"What does assistance mean?" asked the second Homing Pigeon.

"It would have meant the same if I had said that we were a great help to people, or that we were very useful to them, or that we aided them well," said the first Homing Pigeon.

"I see," said the second Homing Pigeon.

"Of course you do," chuckled the first Homing Pigeon.

"We can see all the old familiar places," said the first Homing Pigeon.

"We Are Faithful Creatures."

"and it is partly because of that that we do not lose our way, but then, too, we just somehow know where we are going, and where our home is."

"This is my first race. I'm not quite a year old. I was only hatched last January."

"It's my second race," said the second Homing Pigeon. "How well I remember when I first began to fly around my home. Then I took trips with the family and then at last I was allowed to go off for a little flying trip by myself."

"Everyone knew it wouldn't be for a long flying trip! Of course I was nervous and yet I was proud. It made me feel really grown-up and as though I could look after myself."

"It made me so very proud even with all my nervousness, that I think the pride was stronger than the nervousness."

"We will be going into these races for quite a number of years to come, I believe," said the first Homing Pigeon. "Soon you'll be at your best," he added, "for homing pigeons are splendid in races when they're a little over two years old. It's a splendid age in Homing Pigeon circles."

"Yes," said the second Homing Pigeon, "but Mrs. Horace Homing Pigeon was the winner last year. She said she had been resting."

"We like to fly during the daytime. There are many creatures who like to fly at night. I'm thankful to say that my master wouldn't let me go in the great long race that is held."

"He says these shorter races are nice but that the long, long one is cruel because we would only be worn out afterward. This kind of a race makes us pleasantly tired like any good sport will."

"And if the owners are kind like mine, I believe there are only a few who would let their pigeons go in the great long race."

"They have made sure that the weather is nice, too, so that no harm will come to us."

"Ah," said the first Homing Pigeon, "we are faithful creatures and our families have done a great deal of work."

"All we ask is that we are treated well, and that we may not be disturbed at night when we want to sleep—and when we need the sleep—and, most important of all, that we are not separated from our beloved mates. For the Homing Pigeons are very devoted."

But there was no more talking after this for the race was about to commence and there was great excitement.

Modus Operandi.

Lloyd—"I'm afraid there's a cut in wages coming."

Boyd—"What makes you think so?"

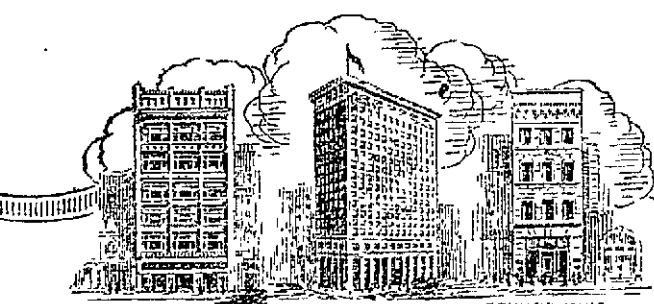

Lloyd—"The company is going to start a house organ."

Daddy's Protector.

A bright little girl, aged four, and her brother, aged six, were spending the night with their aunt. When bedtime came, the aunt asked them how they said their prayers. The little girl answered, "Sometimes I say them to mummy's knee and sometimes to the side of the bed."

"And how about you, little boy?" asked the aunt.

"Oh, I don't need to pray; I sleep with daddy."

Green diamonds are found, and others of crimson, but these are rare. Black diamonds are common enough, but black pearls are rare. Pink pearls are greatly prized. APRIL 9-14, AND HUMANE SUNDAY, APRIL 15.

It is eminently fit and proper that a week should be set aside in the spring of the year to call public attention to man's indebtedness to the animal creation that surrounds us. There are few ways in which we can express our gratitude to the animals but one of them is to give them a square deal and treat them with the kindness and understanding that are no more than their due.

To emphasize this debt and to direct popular attention to the need of being more considerate the custom of observing Be Kind To Animals Week has been adopted by The American Humane Association and local anti-cruelty societies and individuals everywhere. Its only object is to make life a little less of a burden to the lower animals.

HOW FAR?

By Alice J. Cleator, East Claridon, O.
I saw them—women plain and fair
Of face.
I heard soft rustling of their garments' fold.
How deep the dusky splendor of their place!
How rich the organ's thunder upward rolled!

They wore dumb creatures that had writhed in pain,
In all the tortures the steel trap can lend.
They sang of mercy. Was it sung in vain?
How far, O Lord, can praise like that ascend?

HUMANE SUNDAY

The celebration of BE KIND TO ANIMALS WEEK will end with the observance of HUMANE SUNDAY. The spirit of the Golden Rule is exemplified in the work of humane societies and the various religious denominations are appreciating more and more the claims of the dumb creation for protection from unnecessary cruelty. Humane Sunday or Mercy Sunday as it is there called, has long been regularly observed in England, Clergymen of all denominations, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, have given the movement their approval in America by preaching humane sermons or otherwise taking note of the occasion. The sympathy felt for the humane cause among forward looking church people was expressed in resolutions adopted by the general conference of the Episcopal Church at Portland, Ore., last summer. Among other religious organizations that have officially indicated their sympathy with the movement that is responsible for the observance of BE KIND TO ANIMALS WEEK and HUMANE SUNDAY are the Executive Committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the Northern Baptist Convention, General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church and several Episcopal Synods and Methodist conferences. Ask your minister to observe HUMANE SUNDAY April 15, 1923.

BALTIMORE ADVANCES

WHY THAT LAME BACK?

That morning lameness—those sharp pains when bending or lifting, make work a burden and rest impossible. Don't be handicapped by a bad back—look to your kidneys. You will make no mistake by following this Bedford resident's example.

Mrs. J. F. Leonard, 138 Spring St., says: "I don't know what might have been the cause of kidney trouble in my case, but I was bothered with a steady pain in my back. When I stooped, I was taken with a sharp, knife like pain across my kidneys. Dizzy spells also bothered me a whole lot and specks appeared before me. Mornings when I got up I had a tired feeling. Kidney weakness was a sore affliction to contend with, as my kidneys didn't act as they should. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills in the paper, and tried a box. After using several more boxes I was cured entirely and have had no occasion to use them since."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Leonard had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

HELIKVILLE

The farmers are all busy the past week plowing.
H. C. Mickel is finishing the school term of Mrs. Mary Thomas Mickel.

Several of the people here attended the funeral of John Crisman on Sunday at New Paris.

On Sunday Quincey Shaffer's house got on fire by sparks from the flue. By hard work and lots of help they succeeded in saving the building.

Frank Egolf's and Henry Egolf's were in our town Sunday.
Mervin Frazier expects to buy a Ford this week.

Forrest Miller and Walter Moore each purchased a Ford last week.
A few days ago Mr. James Crawford, the last of the old Civil War veterans in this vicinity passed to the great beyond. He was aged 82 years, 3 months and 15 days, and leaves to mourn his loss the following children: Mrs. Q. E. Shaffer and Mrs. J. B. Findley, of Helixville, George and Harry of Elton, Romanus of California state, Ella Turner, of New Buena Vista, Mrs. Carrie Wentz, of Windber and a host of friends. He was buried in the Schellburg cemetery.

ROUND KNOB

Raymond Figard visited at the home of Wilbert E. Barton last Sunday.

Gladys Grace, of Coaldale, visited at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark on last Sunday.
Mrs. Harvey Winter who has been sick for the past few weeks is reported some better.

Mrs. Wade H. Figard has been on the sick list for the past week but is some better.

The Ladies Aid met at Mrs. Alex Foreman's on Tuesday to transact their monthly business with a very large attendance.

Mrs. Raymond Figard and two daughters, Ruth and Jeanette and son, Danold and Miss Emma Winter visited at the home of George Morts at Coaldale on last Sunday.

Chip O'Neal and Frank Figard and Donovan Wright and Harvey Wright have gone to Saxton where they are employed at the Saxton Electric Works.

Roy Figard has purchased a Dodge car.

Wade H. Figard and son Clarence were in Everett on Tuesday transacting legal business.

Plowing and making garden seems to be the order of the day.
Sunday school at Round Knob was largely attended on Sunday.

Mrs. John Smith and daughter Amelia visited at the home of Albert Hildreth from Saturday until Sunday.
Mrs. William Ritchey and Mary Hildreth were visiting in Rays Cove on Sunday.

Those who visited at the home of Wade H. Figard on Sunday were: Mr. Silas Thomas and wife and daughter, Mr. Charley Wright and daughter Susan Chaney, Harry Thomas and family.

COTTONVILLE

Long held spent Thursday night with her grandmother, Mrs. John Helzel.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Truax and daughter, Helen and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Truax and daughter, of Altoona, spent Friday evening with Fred Clair and family.

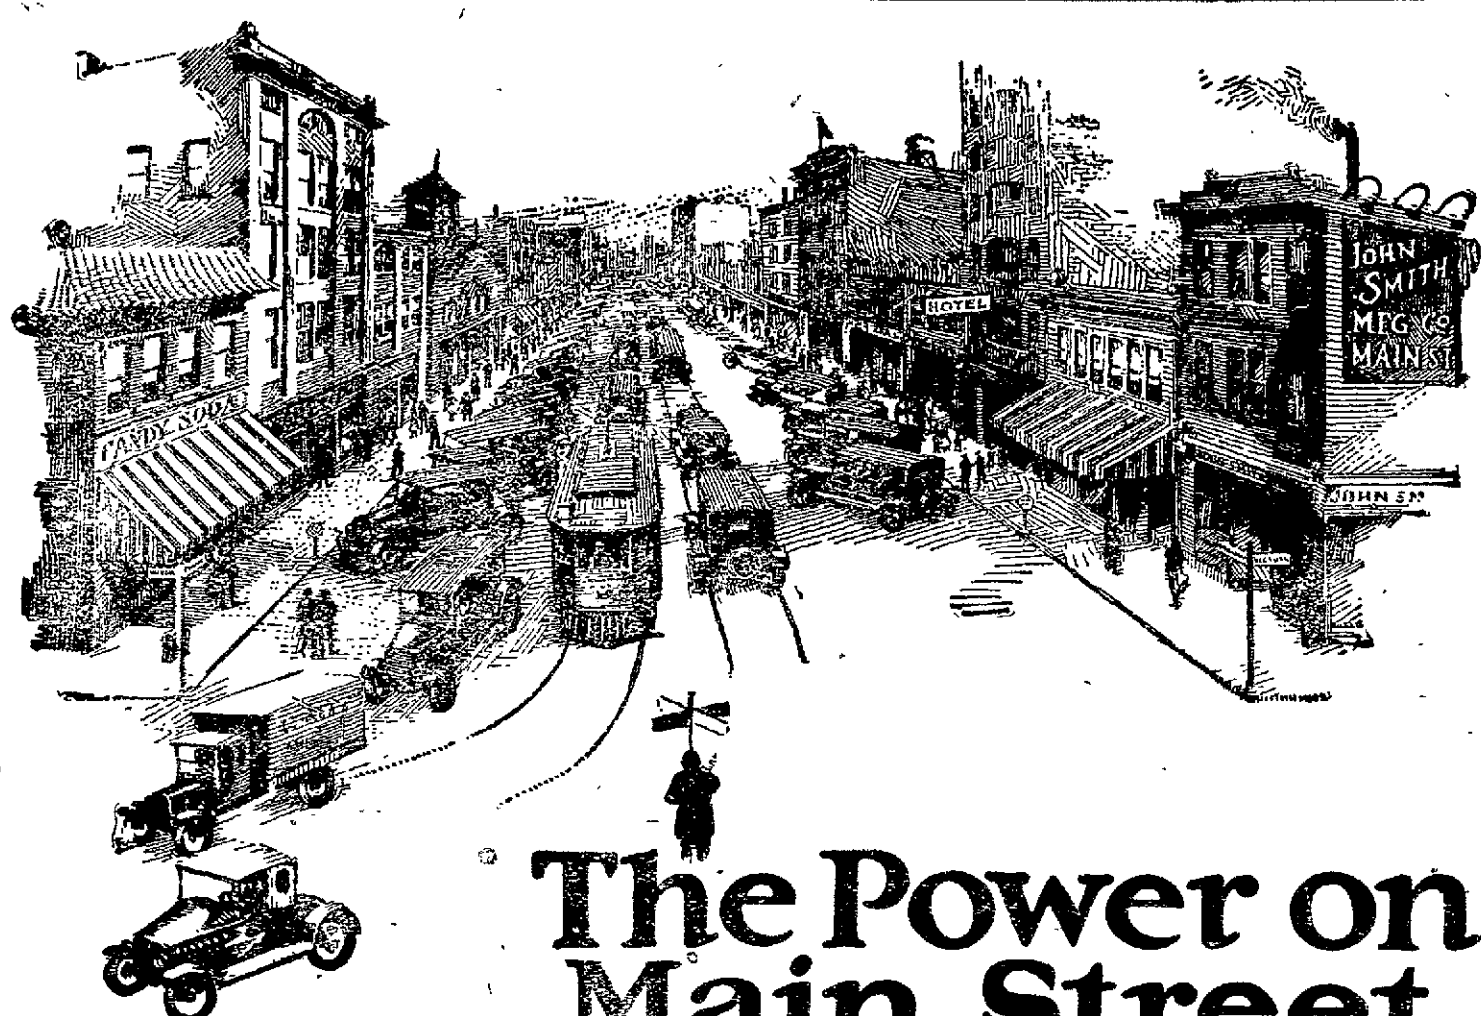

Mrs. Susan Linnefelter is spending some time with Cecelia Clair who is numbered among the sick.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Helzel and son George and daughters Lena, Maude and Margaret spent Sunday afternoon with Harry Weyant and family, of Queen.

Roy J. B. Miller, of Curreyville, spent Saturday night with Joseph Clair and family.

The farmers are busy plowing.
Visitors at the home of Mrs. Ellen Black and Chauncey Black were: Mr. and Mrs. Blair Weyant and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Black and two children, of Sprout, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Black and two children, John and Jacob Musselman, John Black and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Clair Jr., and three children, Justin Walter, Roy Weyant, Mahlon Clair, William Weyant, Maurice Helzel, Lizzie Linnefelter, Lucy and Minnie Musselman.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clair and daughter Daisy, Mrs. Adam Colebaugh, and children, Eugene and Mary, Mr. and Mrs. Howard

The Power on Main Street

On Main Street, Everytown, are thousands of horse power. Even one hundred cars of 50 horse power each represent a colossal power plant costing a fortune. A great percentage of this power is wasted and much of the original investment squandered because of indifference to the value of perfect lubrication.

John Smith's little manufacturing plant, also on Main Street, is only 10 horse power. His engine lasts him a lifetime because, being his bread and butter, he maintains real lubrication. Nothing is too good for his 10 horse power costing two or three hundred dollars but for the auto of fifty horsepower costing two or three thousand, anything will do apparently.

Your answer should be "I use Waverly, All Pennsylvania Motor Oil, acknowledgedly the best obtainable. My car will be in perfect condition while others are junked. I get more power, have less repairs and treat my motor like the splendid piece of mechanism it was designed to be. The best is the cheapest."

THE SUGAR NATIONAL COM-

The Republican National Committee and the "ahrd-boiled" Republican press are busy denying that the tariff has anything to do with the increased price of sugar, wool and many other commodities which have steadily advanced in price since the passage of the Fordney-McCumber Producers' Tariff act.

What then becomes of the promises made to the sugar-growers, to the wool-growers and to the producers and manufacturers of other commodities to increase the price of their products by giving them a higher rate of duty? What becomes of the sacred shibboleth of Protection?

Someone is being bunched. Is it the beet-grower, or cane-grower, or wool-grower or manufacturer, or is

If the Republican hierophants continue to declare the tariff nothing to do with the price of sugar they may furnish an alibi for the Sugar Trusts—Beet and Cane—but it's a cinch they'll also convince the beet sugar farmers who are getting little or nothing for their product.

FARMERS' PAGE

While Stealing, Steal Enough

During the great madness, an 18-year-old doughboy by the name of Jesse Blanton swiped a can of pork and beans from an army store. The value of the can and contents was about 15 cents and the penalty imposed upon the poor kid was one year and one day in the Leavenworth penitentiary.

A short time ago the War Department, by informal bid sold, six carloads of candy to M. C. Rayson of Washington, D. C. Uncle Sam had paid $14,441.15 for the candy and the fortunate purchaser, Rayson, got it for $325. In other words, it was bought for 25 1-2 cents per pound and sold for .000,000,019 cents a pound.

On April 21, 1921, the War Department sold 129,719,722 pounds of canned meat to Thomas Roberts & Co., a brokerage firm of Philadelphia. For this meat your Uncle Sam had paid $56,631,289.21. The price he received from Roberts & Co., was $6,113,844.97, more than $50,000,000 less than the original cost.

The steal was negotiated by Lieutenant-Colonel E. P. Hartshorne, director of sales, and Lieutenant-Colonel L. E. Hanson, chief of the surplus property division of the office of the quartermaster general and was so raw that the Board of Sales unanimously disapproved of the sale. However, before the deal could be stopped Roberts & Co. had disposed of their purchase through a whirlwind sales campaign.

By the following figures it can readily be seen that the American people still "give till it hurts" to the same crowd of payrioters.

Roast Beef—Paid to U. S. by Roberts & Co., 1 1-3 cents per lb.; sold to public for 8 cents per lb.; profit, 900 per cent.

Corn Beef—Paid to U. S. by Roberts & Co., 4 cents per can; sold to public for 9.12 per can; profit, 220 per cent.

No sooner had the army sold this meat to Roberts & Co., than it proceeded to purchase millions of pounds of meat for army purposes, paying therefor several times the price it had received from Roberts & Co., which proves that Uncle Sam got it coming and going. The high-jackers work in two shifts, one robs the government by selling, the others by buying.

Of course, some poor souls may think that the meat sold to Roberts & Co., was slightly spoiled, so as to make it only fit for civilians to eat, but here are the provisions in the sale contract that effectively dispel any such an illusion:

"There shall be a 100 per cent inspection by the United States before shipment. The United States hereby guarantees that all of the property hereby sold shall comply with the pure food laws of the United States and of the several states."

Moral: Don't take candy from babies nor steal a 15-cent can of corn from the army. Go to the right party in Washington and for a consideration they will let you steal fifty or a hundred million dollars, and bless you in the bargain.

Cabinet Meeting

"How is your lame leg, Hal?" inquired Charley Hughes, as Harry S. New, the brand-new Postmaster General, strode into the cabinet room at the White House and took his seat at the big table.

"Fine and dandy," replied Hal, his face lighting up with a cheerful smile. "I'll have to hand it to Warren Harding. He may not be a Christian Scientist or a disciple of Coué, but he's a miracle worker just the same. I never saw anyone who could cure lame ducks so quickly and comfortably. Just look at Poindexter and Mondell. They are cured as miraculously as I was."

Warren grinned grimly and flicked the ashes off his cigarette.

"I know I've been pulling some pretty raw stuff, boys," he mused, "but what is a fellow to do? Lame ducks gotta live same as other folks. And if I can station them where they can reach the till, it is my patriotic duty to do so. Besides, I have a weakness for has-beens. I am something of a has-been myself and I love to be surrounded by members of my own class. That is the reason I have such a strong affection for you guys."

Jim Davis, who imagines he is up to date, winced a little at this, but the rest of the assembled statesmen accepted it as a compliment, and Laddie Boy thumped the rug with his tail and gazed admiringly at his master.

"Speaking of has-beens," continued Warren, "I notice Andy Mellon's divorced wife has married a dealer in antiques. If she likes antiques I don't see why she didn't stay with Andy."

At this point a waiter came in with a tray of moonshine. The remainder of the proceedings were stricken from the record—The Milwaukee Leader.

The Good Roads Meeting

Nothing was said in the Farmer's Page last week on the above subject for two reasons:—Mr. Barkman the previous week hit the nail square on the head, and a desire to avoid hurting the feelings of some citizens in the Alum Bank section. To keep quiet longer on account of individual friendship would place me similar to the fellow who disliked so much his mother-in-law and his wife knowing his feelings and realizing she was dying said, "promise me that you will ride with mother in the same carriage at my funeral." "All right, Maria, if you insist on it I will," he said, his body shaken with sobs, "but I'll tell you right now that it'll take all the pleasure out of the day for me."

Now let it be understood that the writer is for the very best road possible, not only for Hopewell and Pleasantville but for every section of the County. Certainly he is dead against any one or two sections hogging the slop, and practically making it impossible for other sections to become up-to-date; for the time is upon us that to live in the country with no improved roads means cheap land and (may I add) cheap people. From youth we have all been brought up on the slogan in this democracy, "the greatest good for the greatest number", why can't that principle be applied to this road movement?

With our tax burden almost to breaking point now, it's only treating the farmers, living elsewhere than Pleasantville and Hopewell as if we were half baked to expect the voters to support any 500,000 dollar bond issue, if 200,000 dollars is to be first used as suggested. Let us all advance together, else stand in the mud together. It's the only way in keeping with the idea of tax expenditure. Too long has the farmer, who pays 70 per cent of the tax stood idly by and allowed the politicians to build boulevards from city to city for many of the idle rich, as the late lamented Senator Creasy would say.

To improve the roads from the producer to the consumer, especially here in the thickly populated east is the thought to follow.

If we could disinfect the Good Road Movement against politics a wonderful advance would follow.

To those who remember as long as one year they will recall that the cry against the Old Guard was "they promised good roads in this township and in that, solely to carry that section at the election; they have not acted in good faith. Down with the gang; up with the New Guard; and we'll give you all good roads."

When they rode into power on this issue, an unpleasant condition confronted them, the state had no funds with which to build these promised roads. To help them out of the hole they dug for themselves, a meeting of citizens was called and a plan adopted that centers largely around our County Commissioners' office. The County Commissioners can be counted on as being against any move not made in a general way to benefit all the county.

I wonder how those tax payers out in Friends Cove must feel over the tail and plan of "please Mr. won't you help the blind" extended to them in this late Good Road Movement why but a couple years ago that township had it all cut and dried on the Commissioners Minutes for their road and now after nearly sending to prison a couple County Commissioners and having County Commissioners repudiate solemn promises and written pledges Friends Cove is lulled to sleep by a political dream.

With the street rumor making it plain that Congressman Kurtz will recommend Brice and Chamberlain for Post Masters, thereby showing his pleasure enjoyed during the late committee for the support of the Inquirer and Everett Republican; with the idea of Derrick's home section and Wright's home section getting $200,000 of County funds for first roads improved, recalls a recent thought I noticed in the Farmers' Page, in part it said:

"With all our County Offices to fill this fall, the stake will be worth going after."

I can see one business man at least whose policy in business is absolutely honest, soon if not already become wide awake. Like many other political bosses he will become a different man, cold, purposeful, determined, bitter, tumbling over obstacles without heart or conscience using all means to gain his ends, scheming, plotting, undermining this man or elevating that, a politician in every sense of word; cunning, astute, long-headed, farseeing. Long after his plans are matured here and there the farmers will awaken and begin talking politics. Mark you, these political bosses are in a class that don't represent one tenth of one per cent of the voters; while we as farmers furnish on a guess seven out of ten votes cast in the county. In all our effort to show our political strength as farmers we remain asleep at the switch too long; our enemies have the cards marked and we lose the stake." Commissioners hold fast to the first $200,000 until you see what the vote on the $500,000 bond issue is.

"Let us all advance together, else stand in the mud together."

Farmers Should Grow More Legumes

With the little experience that we have had in growing soy beans, they have proven so great value to the land and for feed that I believe our farmers are losing by their neglect to avail themselves of the splendid results in growing soy beans. For hay, especially to milch cows, they scarcely have an equal. One can quickly note the difference and increase in the flow of milk very soon when change is made from the ordinary hay or fodder to soy beans. The ease with which they are grown and cured makes it a crop that fits in so many places in the crop program. But possibly their greatest asset is the improvement to the soil. Their wonderful ability to gather and store nitrogen in the soil makes them especially valuable, since this much needed plant food is so very expensive, because we farmers have been such an easy mark in allowing our fertilizer supplies and many other farm supplies to fall into the hands of the big trusts that bleed us "all the traffic will bear." A few have discovered that monopoly gets practically every advantage it enjoys through politics, by false propaganda during campaigns. The paid press gets us all "het" up with silly fear about bolshevics, radicals and other false patriotic bogies, so that we will not see the real thief who is looting us in fertilizers, machinery, sugar, gasoline, freight rates and every conceivable place where they can hold us up. But we've got the best freest people on earth, so why worry or commit the sacrilege of trying to change anything. My father was a republican, so was my grandfather and all my relations, why shouldn't I stand and be held up by and for my G. O. P.?

An ideal place for soy beans is corn stalk ground, which we usually and I think mistakenly, put this spring in oats. Oats is possibly the worst soil depleter that we grow and usually cut the following wheat crop and grass set sufficiently to lose near the value of the oat crop. The soy bean will really help the following wheat crop, even when a crop of hay is made, but of course turning under is still better for the soil and following crop. The greatest and really only objection is the cost of seed, which will run from three to four dollars per acre. Wilson is possibly the most profitable variety for us to grow and when farmers begin to grow more largely, they will buy seed cheaper or grow their own. Even the ripened, threshed vines are eaten by stock with great relish, but for food value should of course be cut before seed ripens. Wilson's last fall and early winter could be bought for $2.50 but now are much higher. I would advise every farmer to try at least an acre this spring, you will find it good for you to get out of the old beaten rut and it may help you in the wider economic field discover that the political spellbinder has bled you long enough, you will at last discover that it is not so dangerous to think as some would have us imagine.

To our Chestnut Ridge farmers there is another crop that should especially appeal and that is alfalfa. These well drained soils are especially fitted for the growing of this valuable legume. If Chestnut Ridge farmers this spring would mix a couple quarts of alfalfa with each bushel of clover seed and thus get their soil inoculated they should have no trouble to later get a good stand of alfalfa, tho they need not wait for this but can prepare a piece of corn stalks by plowing early as possible and thoroughly cultivate for awhile till all seed of weeds have germinated and been killed; for the one great enemy is weeds. If soil is sour time should be applied, seed should be inoculated either by soil or prepared culture and sowed as early as ground is in very fine tilth and freed from weeds. Cauter lightly. Farmers may not know that a ton of well cured alfalfa hay is practically the same in food value as a ton of wheat bran and will cost very much less, and wonderfully improve the soil by its gathering nitrogen from the air and the other food elements so largely from the subsoil by its very deep rooting properties. Many of these developments in agriculture are of such value that farmers should avail themselves the advantages therefrom.

The orchardist will find soy beans a splendid cover crop in his orchard to be sown after cultivating is needed sown thinly with clover or rye, they make quick growth, add fertility and allow the clover or rye to hold the fertility gained thereby, during the winter. There is only one danger in using alfalfa. I have discovered that there is a peculiar inoculation that has taken hold of the farmers in practically every great alfalfa state. There is North Dakota, noted not only for her great crops of alfalfa hay, but North Dakota alfalfa seed is selling everywhere at a premium and have you noticed that in North Dakota originated that dangerous inoculation called Townleyism that has thrown American Capitalism into a spasm of fear. With a kept press the thing was harried and baffled for a while, and they put Townley in prison for his unpatriotic spirit and recalled Gov. Frazier and by spending several million dollars, stolen from the people, in an effort to squelch this bolshevik-socialist-anarchist wild fire it was hoped the grave danger had been averted and that the profiteers nearly all the surrounding states and elected Radical and Bolshevics to Congress and Senate from all over the Northwest and left in its wake such a swarm of lame ducks for Harding to look after that he doesn't know whether to run again or not. He is like the wag said about the old doctrine of election, "he would be damned if he did and damned if he didn't." Now if you are careful not to read any radical literature and always remember that your father was either a republican or a democrat you will still be safe for the plucker. Anyway take chance and try Alfalfa and soy beans this spring. We Bedford folk don't realize our opportunities and possibilities. Take our apples. Indifferently as we grow them, Bedford apples make an enviable reputation wherever they go. And with all that nature has put into our soil, climate and elevation to enable us to produce apples so far superior to western apples in quality, we find our great nearby market full of western apples, shipped over 1,000 miles, wrapped in paper and packed in boxes and selling for a low price, only because the grower was on the job and made an apple that appeals to the eye but far inferior to Bedford apples in quality. I sent a few highly praises their quality and says "they have an entirely different flavor from the apples grown anywhere around here. And the odor! Oh, how good they are on a tray in the dining room! They perfume all that section of the house." Now these compliments are on apples produced in the poorest season Bedford has had for many years and are below our usual product in quality. Acres of diamonds we have but we must dig for them. The markets near us are ready for the best that we can produce. Soil improvement by growing soy beans and alfalfa is one of the ways to success. For more specific data on these legumes and other desired information make use of our Farm Bureau. It is always at your command.

Elbated Sugar Market Looms As Probe Begins

Cuba Will Produce More Because of High Prices, Hoover Points Out, But Buying Will Be Less.

Washington, March 30.—Responding to orders from President Harding to investigate speculation in sugar, the Tariff Commission has in formally reached two decisions.

1. Within 10 days it will decide whether the Republican tariff law is to blame for the rise in sugar prices.

2. If the Republican tariff law is found "not guilty" the commission will devote six months to discover what men or things anywhere in the world, are to blame.

President Harding telegraphed to the commission that he found it "difficult to believe" that the Republican tariff law had operated to increase prices. During debate on the measure in Congress, however, it is recalled that Republican members said the purpose of the tariff was to keep prices up or to raise them where they had fallen too low by protecting domestic producers against the cheaper products of foreign fields.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover has re-entered the sugar dispute with an incontrovertible statement that "the estimated consumption of sugar will decrease as the result of the present over-high price." Hoover remarks further that "the present price levels will no doubt stimulate production especially in Cuba, where at this moment plantation profits are very large."

There is no paradox, Hoover contends, in his expectation that falling consumption and increased production will be produced by the single cause of over-high prices to the consumer.

The People's Legislative Service, through Basil Manly, commands President Harding for asking the Tariff Commission to investigate sugar profiteering. "provided the Department of Justice takes prompt action to stop speculation and punish the conspiracy of profiteers who rigged the sugar market."

Speaking for the Farmers' National Council, Benjamin C. Marsh demands "government control to consumer" as "essential to protect both the producer and the consumer." Marsh cites the results of this kind of public control as employed by the government of Queensland, backed by the farmers and wage earners of that Australian district.

High Traffic Rates Hurt Northwest

We view with positive disapproval the Fordney-McCumber tariff schedules as affecting commodities consumed in the Northwest, and urge upon the Minnesota congressional delegation definite action for a revision of these schedules. We suggest the appointment of a committee, which shall immediately investigate and report to the joint council specific instances of the destructive effects of the present tariff schedules upon the legitimate interests of the Northwest.

As an emergency measure, we recommend that the present of the United States and the tariff commission immediately exercise the discretion vested in them by the Fordney tariff act to obtain and put in effect a reduction of 50 per cent of the present tariff schedule upon all articles which vitally affect the farmer's cost of production (such as implements and cattle for feeding purposes), and which have resulted in the present large increase in the farmer's cost of living.

The governmental policy of protection now afforded practically every industry has been detrimental in reconstructing the purchasing power of agriculture, the fundamental industry upon which the prosperity of all our people depends. That while such policy continues in effect, we call upon the government to aid in the disposal of the exportable surplus of our agricultural products for which there is now no profitable foreign outlet since the price thereof determines the domestic price of such product, and to enact such legislation as will stabilize the price of agricultural products and place the same on a par as a basis for exchange of the products brought by the farmers.

But let us analyze the two propositions laid down by these city bankers:

1. That the proper way to help the farmer meet this crisis is to pull down the prices for all articles which he has to purchase by deflating the labor costs which go into the making of the articles.

Remember we are discussing ways and means to help the farmer out of his present financial difficulties. What does the farmer purchase in these times? A little farm machinery, clothing, lumber, sugar and a few other articles. The International Harvester company manufactures the machinery and they put out only as much as there is a legitimate demand for—no more. They pay wages necessary to secure their men—no more. And when they have manufactured as much as there is need for, they close their plants down. They can raise or lower prices at will and they do. I understand that prices for farm machinery are expected to be 10 to 15 per cent higher in 1923 than 1922. In other words, the International Harvester company controls its production—its output—and it manufactures only as much as it can sell at a profit. Will some banker show the farmers just how prices of farm machinery can be cut down?

How about clothing? And let us remember, that we are discussing the problem of how to get back prosperity to the American farmer. And we're now off into the financial woods, talking about cutting wages in the clothing industry. Ask any retailer what has caused clothing prices to jump from 10 to 30 per cent during the past six months. Not a man will say it is due to labor costs, for labor costs have not increased in the clothing industry during that time. No, it is the recent tariff increase on cotton and woolen goods which is increasing the prices of clothing to the consumer as well as to the workman.

Country Doctors

The newspapers of the State recently printed a dispatch emanating from Bloomsburg, setting forth that a woman in a country district near there had died from the effects of a severe attack of the grippe, simply because it was impossible to get a physician to attend her.

The only doctor in the neighborhood had so many patients to look after that he was working twenty hours a day, and it was impossible for him to get around to all who needed his help.

This is just a sample of what conditions are in many rural neighborhoods. Last winter a whole village in New York was suffering from an epidemic and it was impossible to secure medical aid. There was not a single doctor within a radius of many miles.

Everywhere the gradual disappearance of the old time country doctor is being commented upon, and he is being sadly missed. More and more the members of the medical fraternity are congregating in the larger towns and cities. Even there the general practitioner is not as much in evidence as during former years. Many of the doctors are specializing in the treatment of particular ailments or diseases, and their fees are going higher and higher.

A recent issue of the Pennsylvania Medical Journal editorially advocated cutting down the course of training for general practitioners to three years instead of four, as at present. Some thing that such a move would help to supply the deficiency of general practitioners in the country districts.

Whatever the difficulty may be

The Home Grist Mill

Ours is not a commercial dairy farm but we always keep two cows for family use so that we need never be without plenty of dairy products of all kinds, and we never buy feed at all. Perhaps we would if we had a big dairy tho some of our neighbors who have the dairy raise practically all their own feed.

We used to go to mill in the old-fashioned way. It required a whole day for a man and team and was a long, hard, tiresome day a that. Eventually we got a good mill which we run with a five-horsepower gas engine not only to grind our own feed but for some custom grinding for our neighbors. Now we save the time and team work required to "go to mill." We know our feed actually grew in a grain field, and our stock never did so well before. Previously the feed bill was something of a nightmare, and I know checks during the year hardly pay for the feed. They take in more money than we but when we sell a fat veal or a few pounds of butter or a young heifer, a far greater proportion of the proceeds therefrom is a profit.

It is a very fair question whether any machine on the farm has paid better than the feed grinder not only in time saved but in the improved condition of stock, independence, and general satisfaction. If we had to go back to the old way I'm sure we never would keep stock at all. Besides feeding the animals, we grind delicious corn meal and many other foods for household use and anyone who has never tried them fresh from the mill doesn't realize how superior they are. Certainly no farmer can afford to do without a home mill.—Mrs. E. M. Anderson, Chautauque County, N. Y.

Wanted—A Red-Blooded Church

The meager number of recruits for the Christian ministry is not due to the Worldliness of the college students, but to the weakness of the Church, which, in practically every campus, we are told further, is suspected of being a series of molds which the minds of all communicants must be poured. Some time ago The Churchman (Episcopal), "having grown weary of the stereotyped explanation of why so few college men are seeking the ministry," decided to ask college men themselves to explain. In the replies received, we are told, few of the explanations commonly given by the clergy appeared. "Back of the bulk of them lay a basic convention that the Church of to-day is a timid Church, represented by a timid ministry," just the reverse of what would appeal to lusty youth. Altogether, says The Churchman, the modern Church represents to "these mentally and morally fearless young Americans," a "grotesque caricature of Christianity." Here is what one of them wrote, as his letter is quoted in the Episcopal weekly:

"A red-blooded young American likes a fight; he admires Roosevelt and believes; with him that: Aggressive fighting for the right is the noblest sport the world affords. We went to war by the million on such a program. In France I regarded the American Red Cross, with its mission of mercy, as the most Christian institution I had ever known. Why doesn't the Christian cross mean as much? Or the Church flag inspire the same staunch love of right as the American flag does love of country? The army of the Church militant seems to be engaged in a defense of a round of drill and ceremonial, a polished brass buttons, a polished uniform, music, members, and not doing or leading. I am content to read creeds that are understood, to pass on wars, to be a catechism, to be a saint, to be a saint. One of the things I saw at the battle of the Marston, was the battle flag, no matter how often the church aisle.

"Meanwhile the underworld enjoys police protection, booze flows freely and dirt runs riot at the city. A Christian who does not care enough to start a good government in his own neighborhood, is a disgrace to the Christian name. I am told that the Churchman have no objective nor do they want a general to lead them into battle, why try to be a general without an army when so many active constructive organizations seek leaders?"

Queen Made Opals Fashionable. Queen Victoria was prominent in developing opals in the central uplands of Australia, and opals became decidedly fashionable in England as a result. About 100 years ago opal deposits were discovered in Honduras in the mountains about midway between the Atlantic and the Pacific, the tendency of these stones being toward red and the opal varieties. Similar opals are said to have been found in Guatemala by H. L. S.

Reputed Landing Place of a. The desert of Carlisle, Pa. encloses nearly 10,000 feet of sand, contains as many as 8,000 of varying sizes. According to tradition these were left at the foot of the desert. When the wind blows it is said that the sand is lifted and the opals are blown to the foot of the desert.

formation of the police. This happened between one and two o'clock. It is now seven. What because of you in the meantime?"

Billy turned to the light and allowed Panke to inspect the wound on the side of his head, only partially concealed by his hair.

"If you'd had that," said Billy, "I guess you'd be lying on the grass yonder now."

"A severe cut," said the inspector, impressed.

"And you lay unconscious there till daybreak?" exclaimed Lady Erythea, with intense sympathy.

"It might have been a week, for all I knew when I woke up. When I'd got my senses back, and made up my mind what to do," said Billy calmly, "I came along here."

"Didn't it occur to you," said Panke, "that the right thing to do was to go to the police?"

"No. It occurred to me the first thing to do was to get the stuff straight back to its owner."

"And perfectly right, too!" said Lady Erythea sharply.

"How did you know," persisted Panke, "that the necklace belonged here?"

Billy turned over the necklace and pointed to the little gold-chain pendant.

"A severe cut," said the inspector, impressed.

cut that bore the Lambé arms in a lozenge.

"Those three sheepskins—" he began.

"Floeces—floeces, urgent," murmured Mr. Lambé.

"—are the same brand as those on the shields over the lodge gates here, which I noticed as I came by. And the thieves were coming from this direction when I struck them."

"Mr. Spencer, not being a policeman, uses his common sense," interposed Lady Erythea with extreme cordiality. "Are you suggesting that he stole emeralds worth a fortune, for the pleasure of returning them with thanks—besides wounding himself on the head?"

Mr. Panke heaved a heavy sigh.

"No, my lady, I am endeavoring to collect facts that may help in the tracing of the thieves." The inspector ran through his notes, detailing the information Billy had given him during the first part of the story. "Full name, William Spencer, on your way from Beechwell to Stanhoe railway station, intending to catch the 2:15 a. m. mail train to London, when you encountered the thieves about 1:30 a. m. Is that correct?"

"Precisely," said Billy, annexing the statements into his memory. "It would not do to forget any of them. The thought of the work he was giving the Recording Angel caused him not a tremor. He was thinking only of Almee, hiding in her cave behind the bramble bush. 'Do you want me to come to the station house?'"

"Not necessary," said the inspector, after a moment's hesitation, "but I want to know where you can be found immediately in case anything further transpires—and your testimony will be wanted if we apprehend the thieves." He avoided Lady Erythea's eye.

"Overseas club, London, will find me. I've quarters there."

The inspector made a note.

"What is your occupation?"

"Motor engineer."

"Engineer?" queried the inspector, glancing at his hands.

"Well, say motor mechanic," said Billy grinning, "and proud of it."

"Are you employed with any firm?"

"I am on my own at present."

Inspector Panke closed his notebook with a snap.

"I must return to my duties, your ladyship. I congratulate you on recovering the emeralds." He bowed solemnly to Mr. Lambé and darted at Billy a parting glance that said: "Young man, however little you desire to see me again, I shall find you when I want you. I am Inspector Panke."

The door closed behind him.

"It is a pleasure," said Lady Erythea grimly, "to reduce the self-esteem of that very fatuous person."

She turned to Billy with increased interest. "You are, it seems, a motor mechanic. And out of employment. Would you care for a situation as chauffeur? I can offer you."

Lady Erythea, "four pounds a week, and all found."

Billy was submerged by two waves of emotion. The first was a strangled desire for laughter. The second, an instant determination to clutch at the offer, with its amazing possibilities and advantages that opened before him. Thought was a very fluid thing with Billy.

"Done!" he exclaimed.

Mr. Alexander Lambé coughed.

"Say, yes, my lady," he murmured.

"Yes, my lady!" announced Billy, into the ear-trumpet.

"Very good," said Lady Erythea with satisfaction. "I engage you. I must warn you," she added with sudden caution, "that I had to discharge my last chauffeur for dishonesty—an offense that in your case is obviously impossible—and also for one still more revolting; I found him philandering most indecorously with one of my maid-servants." She fixed Billy with her eye. "I trust you have no such propensity as that."

"I should," said Billy indignantly, "as soon think of drinking a gallon of petrol."

"Precisely," said Lady Erythea with approval. "Then I should like you to enter upon your duties today. Say this afternoon. There are quarters for you over the garage, and the uniforms of the man I discharged. You will only be required to go out once this evening. At five-thirty—"

Lady Erythea checked herself. "But I forget. You will require a day or two's rest. You have had a strenuous night, your head is injured—"

"That doesn't amount to a skeeter," said Billy quickly. "My head's all right. I can be ready by this afternoon."

"Very well, if you are sure. It will be convenient. My coachman is away for the day. I believe the two motors are in order. Take the smaller one, the Panhard luggage-car, and meet the 5:30 train at Stanhoe. There will be a young woman on the train. She is coming here as parlor maid. Bring her and her boxes. You understand?"

"Sure—very good, my lady," said Billy. "What's her name?"

"The name is immaterial. She is, for Jervaulx. It is curious," added Lady Erythea impatiently, "how my memory fails me. I forget the woman's name. Alexander, you remember I spoke to you of this matter? The girl from Scroope, that I engaged on the recommendation of your uncle—" she was in his service. The daughter of one of his keepers—Lord Scroope gave her an exemplary character, she is coming on a fortnight's trial."

"Snooks was the name you told me," said Mr. Lambé.

"To be sure. The young person's name is Snooks," said Lady Erythea to Billy. "That will preclude all possibility of mistake. I regret, Spencer, that you would not allow me to recompense you, but I have no doubt that I have acquired an excellent chauffeur. And now—you will be glad of a bath and a meal."

She rang for the butler, and gave him an order. Mr. Tarbeaux and Billy departed in each other's company.

Alexander Lambé breathed heavily.

"My dear aunt," he said, "you are a law unto yourself, and I have known you do some remarkable things. But is it wise to engage as servant a man of whom you know nothing, without character or references?"

"Alexander," said his aunt, "you almost betray imbecility. What better references could I have than the restoration of the Lambé emeralds and the refusal of a reward, when the man could have made a fortune for himself without any risk of detection?"

Mr. Lambé was dumb.

"That abominable creature Boxall," said Lady Erythea, "had unexceptionable references, and was chauffeur eighteen months to the bishop of Litchester. You know what his record was here." She turned upon Alexander.

"Do you, a shepherd of men, pretend to say that you think that going upon anything but absolutely honest?"

"I observed him, and I am certain he is honest," said Alexander after a pause. "But—er—his manner is very peculiar."

"We must make allowances," proclaimed Lady Erythea, "for the independence of the American. In theory I have always believed it detestable. Actually I find it not unattractive."

CHAPTER XIV

The New Parlor Maid.

Almee, sitting in the morning sunlight near the mouth of her burrow, heard a rustling among the bushes and at once dived back into shelter. Presently there was a soft whistle, which she answered. Mr. William Spencer parted the brambles very quietly and entered the cave.

"Billy!"

He clicked his heels together and touched his cap.

"Anything I can do for you, miss?" he said grinning. "Got a new job. Chauffeur to her ladyship. Four a week and all found."

"What?"

Billy sat down beside her and made his report. Almee heard it, at first, with the air of Desdemona listening to Othello. Then she rolled on the sand in helpless spasms of laughter.

"How absolutely gorgeous," she panted, sitting up and wiping her eyes. "You've done splendidly. I wish I'd been there to hear you blurt the fat policeman. But—what's the good of the chauffeur's job, Billy? That will hamper you."

"Not a bit! It's great. I just jumped at it. You see, I've got a sure berth now, right close here, where I want to be. I'm your aunt's man. And she's some old girl, too—she isn't taking anything from anyone. You should have heard her handing it to the policeman. I'm solid—so far. And," added Billy, gleefully, "I've two automobiles in my charge. Not bad ones either. We can't use the Sphinx. But, if we want to shift you quick and lively, you've the call on those two cars."

"I never thought of that! You're right, Billy."

"Of course there's danger still. It wasn't any good my giving a false name. That would have been fatal in the end. But there's the trouble that they knew me as Spencer, in Stanhoe. I'm going off right now to try and put that straight," said Billy. "I can see a light. Yes, I believe I can get away with it. That inspector will be a nuisance, I'm afraid. But he's a fool, anyway."

Almee looked at him admiringly.

"What a lot of whoppers you must have told, Billy. Did you mind?"

Billy put a twig between his white teeth and bit it in half thoughtfully.

"Where I come from, we hate a liar," he said. "But there's just one time when a man can lie, and it's up to him to do it. Mind? I—I enjoyed it."

"But I don't see how you can do it so well, if you've had no practice."

"It's wonderful how you fall into it, when there's something worth doing for," said Billy shrewdly. "Well, I must get busy. I've got till the evening, when I fetch a hired girl from the station. She's from down your way. Name," he added, grinning, "of Snooks. What do you think of that, partner?"

"What?" cried Almee. "It must be Amy Snooks—daughter of Dad's second keeper, who was killed in the war. I know her as well as I know—myself. I gave you her name when you asked me mine—it was the first I could think of. You say Aunt has engaged her?"

"Yes. On your father's recommendation."

"How beastly awkward! Directly she sees Georgie the game's up!"

"That's rotten," said Billy seriously; "we've got enough on our hands as it is. If she wasn't a woman, I'd spill the car and put her out of action for quite awhile, so she couldn't give you away. As it is, seems to me the only thing is for me to get hold of your cousin Georgina and show her how to keep the Snooks girl quiet. I think it can be done. If Georgina has any sense."

"Yes, that might do. I don't think we need worry much about Amy Snooks, after all. I wish I could get a word with Amy myself. She'd do any blessed thing I told her—even if it was to throw herself into a furnace. I can manage Amy. You'll just have to do your best, though. But look here, Billy," said Almee earnestly, "you haven't told me yet how you're going to pull me out of it all. It's getting a worse tangle every hour. What's the plan?"

"I'll be back here about seven this evening," said Billy seriously, "and by then I'll bring you good news—you trust me. Gee! why didn't you remind me?" he exclaimed with self-reproach, dragging a paper parcel from his pocket; "you must be starving."

"I had some chocolate from the Sphinx's panner."

"Well, try this," Billy exposed some rashers of bacon between slices of bread, and a lukewarm sausage. "I wish it was something better. They gave me a meal at the abbey, and I pinched these for you. And here's your blue dust-cloth from Ivy cottage. Put that on. It'll cover the tear in your dress, in case anyone came across you. I'll try and raise a new skirt for you. An' now I've got to slide out and get to work."

He rose quickly, and was gone before she could say a word. Almee went to the cave's mouth and watched him out of sight.

"I wonder what he'll do," she said to herself. She reflected on the situation. The difficulty concerning Amy Snooks, the new parlor maid, was uppermost in her mind.

Twenty-five Million Dollars' worth of New Equipment will be added to the Bell System in Pennsylvania this year

HALF a million miles of new wire, thirty-five new building operations, seventy thousand new telephones, ten million dollars' worth of central office equipment—such is our program for 1923.

And all this in addition to the tremendous amounts of new plant added in the last three years, which was more than in any six previous years in Pennsylvania's telephone history.

There is an enormous demand for telephone service. Twenty-five million dollars in one year is our effort to meet this demand.

Water Power Put to Good Use.

An interesting example of the development of water power is reported from Cashiers. There the Jhelum river has been made to generate electrical power to deepen its own channel, and so prevent the overflowing of 200,000 acres of land, which are thus made available for agriculture. The fact that the cost was available, and that the site was 200 miles from the nearest railway station, made the use of water power imperative in this case.

San Francisco Quake Was

The San Francisco earthquake occurred April 18, 1906. The area affected was at least 450 miles in length, extending from Mareka in Humboldt county to the southern extremity of Fresno county, and probably 50 miles wide at most points. The main shock was felt about 5:13 in the morning. It caused the ground to sway sufficiently to wreck buildings, rupture the gas and water mains and even to disturb heavy masonry in places. Minor shocks were recorded at intervals all through the day.

Love and Potatoes.

A member of a well-known club, on being asked to define "love," compared it to a potato—first, "because it shoots from the eyes," and secondly, "because it becomes less by paring."

Friendship.

Friendship supplies the place of everything to those who know how to make the right use of it. It is a good, your misfortune, more than any, and makes you, adversity, more easy. —Socrates
